Dividends are then distributed on a suitable day and to the extent that is considered appropriate. For the dividends accruing in a fund unit, the management company will, following any deductions for withholding tax, purchase new units on behalf of unitholders who are registered to receive fund units on the day set aside for this purpose. The dividend on behalf of a unitholder – following any tax deductions – will instead be paid to the unitholder. Annual distribution

Share classes B SEK, B EUR, B SEK C and B EUR C distributes dividends. The management company decides annually on the dividends payable to the unitholder of the distributing share class. Dividends are calculated from the distributing share class share of the fund's value. The starting point for determining the amount of the dividend is the change in value of a unit in share class B since the last dividend. The management company may pay a dividend at a higher or lower amount than the change in value. For more information on the objective in relation to the amount of the dividend please refer to the prospectus. In respect of the fund's first dividend of what has been said above about previous dividend instead relate to the timing of the introduction of the distributing share class.

For dividends that accrues to a unit, the management company shall, after any deductions for withholding tax pay the dividend in cash unless a separate request for reinvested dividends is made. Requests for reinvested dividends shall be made in writing to the management company no later than 10 business days prior to the record date for the dividend. The payment of dividends will be paid in January of the year following the financial year, to unitholders who on the record date, which is decided by the management company, is registered unitholders of the distributing share class.

Dividend affects the ratio between the value of units that is accumulating and the value of units that are distributing i.e. the value of the distributing fund units declines in relation to the size of the dividend.

However, the management company can decide on distributing dividends to unitholders if, in the management company's opinion, it is necessary to take advantage of the unitholders' joint interests. Dividends are then distributed on a suitable day and to the extent that is considered appropriate. For the dividends accruing in a fund unit, the management company will, following any deductions for withholding tax, purchase new units on behalf of unitholders who are registered to receive fund units on the day set aside for this purpose. The dividend on behalf of a fund unitholder – following any tax deductions – will instead be paid to the unitholder.
